Course Description and Objectives:

Course Description:

This continuing education session is designed for general dentists who play a critical role in identifying and referring suspicious oral lesions. Dr. Hartman will present case scenarios, highlighting key clinical features that warrant biopsy or surveillance follow up. Dr. Gildea will then provide a histologic review, discussing differential diagnoses and what the pathology report reveals about patient management. This interactive discussion will help attendees improve their ability to recognize concerning lesions and understand the implications of histologic findings in guiding patient care.

Learning Objectives:

1. Recognize the clinical features of common and high-risk oral lesions that warrant further evaluation.
2. Understand how histologic findings contribute to the differential diagnosis and treatment recommendations.
3. Improve communication with patients and specialists regarding biopsy results and next steps for management.
